Eritrea Participated in the AU Regional Conference on Human Trafficking and Smuggling in the Horn of Africa

A high-level Eritrean Delegation led by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Osman Saleh, participated in the African Union Regional Conference on Human Trafficking and Smuggling in the Horn of Africa which took place in Khartoum, Sudan from 13-16th October 2014.

The Conference was attended by representatives of the core countries of the initiative - i.e. Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia and Sudan - as well as several neighboring and partner countries and organizations.

At the Experts meeting that took place from 13-15 October, Ambassador Araya Desta, Permanent Representative of Eritrea to the AU and UNECA, made a presentation that highlighted the pull and push factors that cause and exacerbate human trafficking and smuggling and their consequences in the region.

Eritrea's presentation also exposed the politicized preferential asylum policies of certain countries towards Eritreans which subjects the youth to the dangers of human trafficking and smuggling as well as attracts many non-Eritreans to pretend to be Eritreans to expedite their asylum claims. The Presentation explained in detail the efforts made by the Eritrean Government to combat and prevent human trafficking and smuggling at national, regional and international levels.

Minister Osman Saleh, in his remarks to the Ministerial segment that was convened on the 16th of October, put forward a number of recommendations to resolve the problem and reaffirmed Eritrea's commitment to combat the scourge. (The full text of his speech is found on page 3)

REMARKS BY H.E. MR. OSMAN SALEH
MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS OF THE STATE OF ERITREA
AT THE AFRICAN UNION REGIONAL CONFERENCE ON HUMAN TRAFFICKING AND SMUGGLING IN THE HORN OF AFRICA, 16 OCTOBER 2014

Mr. Chairman,
Excellencies,

Eritrea wholeheartedly welcomes the convening of this meeting keenly aware that this is but the latest in a long series of forums organized to address the critical issue of migration and the crime of human trafficking, which is affecting millions of people and nations throughout the world. Previous gatherings have patently failed to stem the tide of illegal migration or constrain the human traffickers. If this meeting and the related next November gathering in Rome are to make a tangible contribution towards solving this complex problem, they cannot be mere public relations exercises. We should not be meeting for PR purposes, to seem to be doing something, but to actually do something, to make a difference for our peoples and nations, to bring results within a fixed period of time.

This requires that we go beyond general statements on the need to address the root causes of the problem to taking concrete steps, within specified timeframes to address these root causes. It also requires, at least in Eritrea's case, that the selective, mistaken, unjustified and counter-productive politicization of the issue of migration and the consequent victimization of Eritrean migrants as well as the rampant nationality-switching is brought to a swift end.

As part of a comprehensive approach to address the issue of migration and human trafficking, Eritrea proposes the following:-

- ◆ A robust and concerted effort to identify, arrest and prosecute the human trafficking criminals, and all those who in different guises, including human rights activism, are complicit in these crimes.
- ◆ A determined effort for broad-based and sustained socio-economic development as well as active citizen political participation to provide increased opportunities for citizens in countries that are currently sources of migration.

- ◆ A review of the migration policies of the countries of destination, and in Eritrea's case, the end of the selective and unjustified politicization of the migration issue.
- ◆ Protection of the rights of all migrants, including their right to education, skills training, employment as well as their right to maintain their links to and visit their home country.

Implementation of these measures, with a view to making tangible progress within a time frame of three to five years, requires a strong political will and commitment of all concerned nations as well as their resolute, sustained and coordinated efforts.

For Eritrea, fighting illegal migration and human trafficking is an important national priority. Along with the continued illegal occupation of sovereign territory and the imposition of unjust sanctions, promoting illegal migration has been a particularly insidious part of the tool box employed to undermine the country. Despite these obstructions, however, Eritrea is completely focused on and actively working for sustainable political, social and economic nation-building. Sustained, and relative to our resources, massive investment in socio-economic reconstruction and human resources development is beginning to bear fruit and we are confident that the next few years will see tangible change in the lives of our people, which will all also have a bearing on migration patterns. Eritrea is determined to work with all partners, the neighboring as well as European countries, to fight human trafficking, which is a crime against humanity, and to address its root causes.

I thank you!
